21 DEC 1971

Dear Sir,

I am writing to tell you that you have been found to be fit for service and that, in the normal course of events, you will be required to commence your national service with the Army on or about 26th January, 1972.

Further advice will be sent to you at your registered address giving full details of the date, time and place at which you are to report for service.

If you are in employment you should inform your employer now that you have received this advance notice but you should not make arrangements to leave work until you are advised of the time when you are required to report for service. If you leave your employment before you are required to report you may forfeit rights you may have to reinstatement in your employment upon return from service.

If you wish to claim that the rendering of service would impose exceptional hardship upon yourself, your parents or your dependants you must lodge an application with the Registrar within 14 days of the date of receipt of this notice. (Read carefully the notes on the back hereof.)

If, between now and the date when you are required to report for service, you should sustain an injury or contract an illness which may affect your fitness for service, please forward immediately to me at the above address, the necessary details supported by a medical certificate.

Yours faithfully,

A.P.H. COOK
